

We all miss Dr. Roger Cliffe, but his words of wisdom continue to help students get the most from their experiences while at the school. Here is a letter that Roger sent to his students before they attended his Cabinetmaking class. His advice will always be my school's battle-cry!

Marc

Your week at Marc Adams School will go fast. Do your best to remain alert during all presentations. Be sure to jot down notes when appropriate; ask questions when you do not understand the information being presented. As you work on the power equipment, be alert to your safety and the safety of others; your kickback could injure a fellow student. Work efficiently; before you go to a piece of equipment, know what it is that you plan to do. We cannot have individuals tying up a piece of equipment while they think about the job. If you are going to suffer paralysis by analysis, do it at the bench! Mark your stock accurately and completely, there is nothing worse than two left sides or a piece of plywood with the worst side exposed.

Take good care of yourself. Standing all day for five consecutive days may be more taxing than you think. If you are fatigued, take a rest even if it means falling behind; you cannot do woodworking from a hospital bed! Most accidents occur when an individual is tired and/or rushing a job. Don't put yourself in that position. Working efficiently is far different than rushing a job. We as instructors will make every effort to help you become a better woodworker, but you must also help yourself. Try to solve your problems whenever possible; when that is not possible, solve as much of the problem as you can on your own. This makes it easier for the instructors to help you and it helps to develop problem solving skills on your own which is an important part of the learning process.

Do not let the project you are working on become the focal point of your week at the Marc Adams School! The project is a means to an end; that end is learning! In my mind, the best thing that could be done with all the cabinets at the end of the critique would be to set them on fire and roast marshmallows! While you will be taking the cabinet home with you, it is far less important than the knowledge you will be taking home in your mental toolbox. Always focus on the knowledge!

A foundation has been established in Roger's name to continue the educational funding of woodworkers. Donations can be mailed to the address below. Be sure to note "Roger Cliffe Fund" in memo line on the check. Together we can help change lives – thank you for your generosity!
